Longer description of show/content (500 word max, to go on website -please provide shortened detail on each information update or audio capsule):

Andrew John Soltis takes an in depth look at his own heritage and delves into the characters and voices peppered throughout his community of Prince George, BC. Speaking to both Metis elders and millennials alike, the presence of French language has a complex history in all our narratives. During discussions with professors at the University of Northern British Columbia Andrew discovers that the French language has existed in this storied territory for longer than he ever could have realized.

This textured journey through the region's identity attempts to answer what it means to be French, and Metis.
