CKUT-FM Montreal, QC – Produced by Carla Green – “Mining in Quebec and Beyond”

Carla Green is a McGill student and journalist based out of Montréal, New York, and soon, Buenos Aires. She’s a member of the news collective at CKUT 90.3fm and regularly contributes to the McGill Daily and the Media Co-op. She enjoys playing with language, and languages.

Amid protests outside the Palais des congrès, CKUT journalists penetrated the Salon des ressources naturelles and spoke to the mining representatives who had gathered to sell their companies to new employees and customers. On Off the Hour, Carla hosted a special hour-long live panel discussion on the mining industry in Quebec and abroad, Aboriginal peoples title rights, post-Plan Nord and mining resistance. There were interviews from inside the Salon itself with commentary from Marie-Dominique Langlois from the Projet Accompagnement Québec Guatemala (PAQG), Cleve Higgins from the Indigenous Solidarity Collective, and Pakesso Mukash, Cree/Abenaki/French Canadian musician, and activist.
